DECK AND DOCK NEWS

Collier Saturn Leaves Out for San Francisco.

ALLIANCE SAILS FOR EUREKA

Virginia Reaches Here From San Francisco—Lottie Bennett Departs—Murky Day on Waterfront—Garmes Arrives Down.

The beautiful bay of Astoria was one long blur all of yesterday. The clouds swung low and gloomy over the whole coast line, and fog and mist and rain drifted athwart the bay and city almost without interruption, from morning till night. It was a veritable winter day, as far as appearances went, and was such, except for the warmth of the season. The fishing fleet was out, but could be seen only at intervals, and then passed into the film of fog and sweeping rain. For a June day, it was a revelation and was commented on at all points, and with disagreeable surprise, by the oldest of Astoria's people. It is hoped but few such days are in store for the coast people, for a week of such weather will bring on an epidemic of the 'demnition bugs.'

The big auxiliary steamer Saturn, doing collier duty in the navy, came down from Portland yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and picked up Captain Gundersen, of the bar pilot service, and went to sea and San Francisco, without checking her course through the city channels.

The steamer Alliance arrived down from Portland about 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, with a few passengers, and her Japanese crew. She took on about 20 tons of freight here, and proceeded to sea and Eureka.

The four-masted schooner Virginia was an arrival here yesterday from San Francisco, and left up last night on the hawesers of the Harvest Queen for Portland.

Captain W. W. Babbidge has sold the steamer Cowell to C. H. Johnson. She will be used as a tender to one of the seining grounds in the Columbia river.

The four-masted schooner Lottie Bennett went to sea yesterday on the tow-lines of the Wallula. She was bound for San Pedro with lumber.

The schooner W. F. Garmes arrived down on the Harvest Queen last evening lumber laden for San Pedro, and will probably get despatch today.

The steamers Telegraph and Undine were both down yesterday on their usual trips and both were carrying fairly, both ways.

AUTO AND STREET CAR IN COLLISION

Wealthy German, Owner of Machine, is Killed, and Pinned Beneath Auto—Others Escape.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Herman W. Schnibbe, a wealthy German of Brooklyn, invited three friends to accompany him in his automobile to Coney Island and Manhattan beach last night. The party started from the beach for home shortly after midnight.

Schnibbe was driving the car down Pacific street, Brooklyn, at a good speed. At Troon avenue, where the Summer Avenue Trolley cars cross Pacific street, a car was rapidly approaching and the car and machine came together with a crash. The automobile was thrown a dozen feet and overturned. The trolley car left the track.

Schnibbe's guests jumped, but he was pinned beneath the machine and killed. His companions, two of whom had been knocked unconscious, were taken to the hospital.
